Change Comes In School Bus Law

A frightening, near-miss emphasized, this week, the importance of knowing, and obeying, laws governing the operation of motor vehicles near a school bus.

A car that continued to operate past a stopped bus apparently came within inches of striking a small child late last week, as its mother ran into the street in an attempt to signal the driver to stop.

The incident, frightening in its implications, resulted in a request from the child's mother that the law governing use of a vehicle, when a school bus is stopped, be explained once again.

As it stands now, all vehicles must come to a stop when

Latin Club Presented Full-Scale Roman Banquet

Last Friday evening the cafeteria of the Junior High School was the scene of a Roman banquet, at which the second period Latin class played host to the other divisions studying first year Latin.

Large scale murals depicting The Circus Maximus, characters from Winnie the Pooh, and conventional Roman wall decorations served as background for tables set in an oval and decorated with flowers and small statuary. Larger statues, gifts of former high school classes, were refinished in antique white and gold, and, surrounded by branches of flowers, simulated a classic garden. Decorations were in charge of Lynne Anderson, aided by Betsy Newcomb, Susan Bamford, Barbara Hodgman and Janet Clift.

The menu consisted of eggs and ripe olives, fish, curried rice, salad dressed in olive oil, punch, fresh fruit and sweets made of honey, dates and nuts, all foods relished by the Romans. Eighth grade girls dressed as slaves served the various courses and passed the finger bowls. They were

Sidewalk Bazaar Coming In June

A gala, two-day sidewalk bazaar is being planned by the Board of Trade, on June 23-24.

All non-profit organizations in the community - church groups, veterans organizations, civic and social groups - are invited to participate in the affair.

Trade Board President Kenneth P. Thompson has urged all representatives of these organizations to call him, if they wish to have a sidewalk booth. Although it is planned to personally contact each group, Mr. Thompson explained that some valuable time will be saved if the organizations make an effort to get in touch with him.

In connection with the bazaar, a community-wide chowder supper will probably be served Friday night, June 23. Tentative plans call for an advance sale of tickets by

Special Exhibit At Addison Gallery

As a special feature of the commencement season at Phillips Academy, the Addison Gallery has installed an exhibition "New Work and Teamwork - The Architects Collaborative 1946-1961" on the occasion of this Cambridge firm's 15th Anniversary and the 30th Anniversary of the Addison Gallery.

The exhibition consists of mural photographs, colored renderings and models of architectural projects which the firm has undertaken around the world, especially Iran, Germany and Japan. Work both completed and projected at Andover appears as a prominent part of commissions undertaken in the United States. Already built at Andover are new types of dormitories in which the social life of the student is provided for as a significant development in his education and a study library for research in American History; yet to be constructed are facilities for Science - with special emphasis on discovery in the laboratory - and an Arts and Communications Building, to enhance the creative aspects of the Humanities alongside those of Science.

One gallery in the exhibition is devoted to "the architect at work," demonstrating the multitude of preliminary sketches, progressive studies and working drawings that are involved in any project. This display also includes the variety of sample materials; fabrics, metal, wood, bricks and tiles and fixtures of all kinds with which an architect should be acquainted in the ordinary conduct of his profession. Accordingly, the room is furnished with tables, chairs, lamps and the like, to resemble the worklike character of an architect's office. Among local work included in the exhibition are school buildings in Attleboro, West Bridgewater, Lincoln, Littleton, Needham, Waltham and Wayland, as well as the academic quadrangle at Brandeis University. Temple Reyim in Newton, the Overholt Clinic of Boston and the Harvard Mart, Cambridge, add to the variety of buildings; domestic architecture is represented principally by the impressive house of the late Carl Murchison in Provincetown.

In short, the exhibition documents the changing face of the modern world as observed in the teamwork of a group of men who have sought to understand and to better it in the years since the second war.

The exhibition is open free to the public on weekdays from 9 to 5; Sundays from 2:30 to 5 p.m., through July 4.

Just How HIGH Are Food Prices?

Everyone knows that the prices of just about everything have been going up for many years. Those goods and services which go up faster than average make inflation worse. Those goods which rise slower than average retard inflation and help maintain price stability.

Where does food fit in this pattern? Are food prices out of line with the inflationary trend? Quite the contrary is true.

As shown in the current issue of Look magazine, prices of "groceries" since 1953 have gone up only five percent, while other consumer prices have increased about 12%. Food is not responsible for the rising cost of living.

Of course, how much you pay for food depends a lot on where you do your shopping. At the CO-OP, we think we help fight inflation in three ways. First, our prices on national brands are at or below competitive prices. Second, we have hundreds of items under the CO-OP label sold at bargain prices. And third, everything we sell is subject to a CASH refund.

approaching a bus that is discharging passengers. But then the vehicles may proceed, in either direction, at no more than 10 miles an hour, using proper caution. However, starting July 13, the law will be changed.

It will require, after that date, that all vehicles stop when a school bus is halted, and its lights are flashing. The vehicles may not start again, unless the flashing lights go out, or the driver signals traffic to resume.

Under the new amendment to the law, then, it simply will require that vehicles stop and remain stopped until the bus starts up, or until signalled.

At The Library

Coming Events

SUMMER
Summer program for boys and girls.
Summer hours begin near end of month.

Film programs close June 15.

Library Films

Any group wishing to make use of the free films which the library offers to its public must plan to use the remaining films before the middle of this month, after which there will be nothing on hand until the autumn season opens.

Only three color films are available; all are on Canadian subjects, and would be especially appealing to fishermen. "Big White Water" runs for nine minutes, and shows fishermen exploring a turbulent river in northern Quebec. "Frasers River" runs for 15 minutes, and is the story of a savage stamsted river; "Location Niagara" is a 27 minute scenic drama of the famous Niagara Falls. Groups wishing to make use of the films should reserve them as early as possible.

Summer Hours

Borrowers who take books this Saturday, June 3, will notice that the dates on which such books become due is June 26, on a Monday. This is because the library will go into its summer schedule on Saturday, June 24, and the library will be closed that day, and Saturdays following.

All materials are loaned for a period of three weeks under the present charging system, including recordings. Framed prints may be borrowed for home use for a small fee, and are taken for a period of two months. The library has about 100 prints in its loan collection, all beautifully framed, ready to hang in the home.

Those who borrow prints are sent a warning note a few days before the print is to become due. There is a fine for anything kept beyond its due date.

Summer Program

All boys and girls will be invited to take some part in the summer program which is being prepared by the Children's Librarian, Miss Margaret Lane. Full details will be issued a little later.

Civil War Display

A number of facsimiles of flyers actually posted during the Civil War may be seen at the Memorial Library with the display of books on the Civil War. These have been copied from the Chicago Historical Society collection and the Abraham Lincoln Book Shop collection. One is a recruiting sheet, urging young men to join a regiment to be formed in Philadelphia, holding out for them the promise of buttons, gold lace, uniforms, tobacco and whiskey, and war warrants at the close of the war.

Another offers the reader a chance to "avoid the draft" by listing in the 7th Indiana Cavalry.

A third flyer offers $50 for horses of dark color, sound, strong, well broken, square trotters, and harness, etc., adapted to artillery service. The call was for 2,000 horses for cavalry purposes.

An unusual map of the battlefields of the Civil War, with descriptive notes, may be seen with the book display.

During the past year more and more books on this war have been published, brought out largely for the Centennial. Among these are the following, which have been purchased recently: "The American Heritage Picture Story of the Civil War," edited by David Boykin; "The Civil War, a Narrative, Foote; The Great Rebel," by Miers; "To Appomattox, Davis; Grant Moves South, Catton; The Women and the Civil War," by Mary Kay Vaughan; "The Civil War in the North in the Civil War, 1861-1865," (prints reproduced from the originals, with historic background text of each battle); "The War in the Far West, 1861-1865," by Lewis; "The Twentieth Maine, Pulver; The Union Reader, Harwell; The Civil War Dictionary, Boatner; The Land The Sea, 1861-1865, by Lewis; etc.

All books displayed here are available for home reading.

Board To Discuss

Recreation Director

Appointment of a recreation director for the town will definitely be on the agenda when the Selectmen meet June 6.

Town Manager Thomas E. Duff made a recommendation for the position at the Board's meeting May 15, and this was put over for a week after members of the Board indicated a desire to further consider the appointment.

However, the item did not appear on the agenda at the meeting May 22, and was not brought up during the session.

It is understood that the manager, Recreation Committee and some members of the Finance Committee had recommended a candidate for the position, who has experience in the field and who lives locally.

Although there was not much discussion of the matter at the Selectmen's meeting May 15, the manager was queried as to where he obtained applicants, who they were, and was asked why he had not inquired of Springfield College and Sargent College.

A number of applications were received, Duff told the Board, and were interviewed by himself and the Recreation Committee. The latter group made its unanimous recommendation on a candidate to the manager. And with Duff's recommendation, this was presented to the Selectmen for approval.

LATIN CLUB
HELD BANQUET

Susana Sullivan, Linda Stulgis, Midge Harrison, Laura Kitchins, Pamela Howe and Lonnie Somers.

The blessing was offered in Latin by Susan Bamford. Peter Witman, as master of ceremonies, gave a Latin speech introducing the main speaker, Dr. Alston Chase, Head of the Classics Department at Phillips Academy, who delighted his audience with a witty and scholarly comparison of the Romans and present-day Americans.

Cordial greetings in Latin from Superintendent Edward I. Erickson and Miss Ida Grover, Latin teacher in the High School, were read by Betsy Newcomb and Barbara Hodgman, and translated by Lynne Anderson and Ann Leacock. Teachers in attendance were Miss Evelyn Parker, Mrs. Stanley Parker, Richard Neal, acting principal Peter Soderbergh and Mrs.

Soderbergh, Miss Harriett McKee and Mrs. Walter Partridge, the last two being Latin teachers. Mrs. George Drew of the Homemaking Department helped to prepare the dinner and supervised the girls who served.

Jo-Marie Barber and Deborah Dearborn, with the help of Mrs. Everett Dearborn, a talented artist, refinished the statues. The girls also helped with the murals as did Darlene Bennert, William Cooper and Craig Connolly. Invitations in the form of scrolls were prepared by Barbara Hodgman. Place cards were designed and executed by James Munroe, Garry Norris, Henry James and Harry Dustin. Prizes for the best costumes were selected and presented by Karen Lundgren and Joan McGilvray to Linda LaBrie, Nancy Disbrow and Paul Nelson. Karen Grant did the research on costumes and eating habits of the Romans.

One of the highlights of the evening was the lovely Dance of the Vestal Virgins, performed by Nancy Doyle, ninth grader who studies ballet at the Boston Conservatory. Music for her dance as well as background music for the banquet was arranged by Joseph McEneaney.

Col. Collins Plays Major Role In NATO Activity

"Scramble Daggers. Vector 070, Angels 40. Contact Flamingo control, UHF radio Channel 6."

This call is hardly completed before two NATO-assigned supersonic F-102s from the U.S. 17th Air Force's 526th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, based at Ramstein, Germany, are screaming down the runway. Seconds later they skim off the ground in tight formation.

In conformity with the USAF ground control instructions to "vector 070" the jets climb almost vertically veering somewhat right until they have attained the required altitude of Angels 40 (40,000 feet). Meanwhile the French ground radar intercept station charged with directing the mission, has identified and contacted the two F-102 "Delta Daggers".

"Daggers, this is Flamingo Control. Come to Vector 080. Target is bogey (unidentified aircraft) tracking a vector 270 course at angels 40 with air speed 550 knots." Flamingo controller has now picked up the two Delta Daggers and the bogey on his radar scope. From this point until just short of the interception he will guide the super-sonic jets to their target.

This is not just a routine training flight. With more than 1,000 other aircraft representing nine different countries, the Daggers of the 526th Fighter Interceptor Squadron and the U.S. 17th Air Force ground control units are testing their intercept skill in NATO's major air defense exercise which is sponsored every four months by the international air command Headquarters at Fontainebleau, France, of Allied Air Forces Central Europe (AIRCENT).

"Defenders" for the exercise are drawn from the air forces and from the NIKE missile units assigned to AIRCENT's British-German - Belgian - Netherlands Second Allied Tactical Air Force (Second ATAF) and to its US - French - German - Canadian Fourth ATAF. Joining these NATO forces in closely coordinated air defense operations are fighter aircraft units of the French National Air Defense Command.

The "raiders" are all orientated to sweep in from points parallel to the Iron curtain. Part of the raiding forces is drawn also from AIRCENT's Second and Fourth ATAFs and part will come from French, U.S., Italian, Danish and Norwegian air units of other NATO, or of Allied National commands.

Some of the difficulties in directing this exercise arise from the fact that air defense was not at the outset handed over to international control, but remained a national responsibility. However, in 1956 the great danger in having national "islands of defense" - which precluded the swift communication of vital air defense warning and operational data from one national zone to another - was recognized. An Air Defense Coordinator with a highly-qualified international staff was appointed to AIRCENT. He was given the job of recommending how best to coordinate NATO and nationally controlled air defense forces (including surface to air missiles, aircraft, radar and communications) so that they could function efficiently as an interlocking unit in case of war.

It is at AIRCENT that Lieutenant Colonel William J. Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Collins, 18 Washington ave., who heads the Air Defense Surveillance, Control and Evaluation Branch, plays an important part in the building of

MISS JOY PARTRIDGE Joy Partridge Graduates June 5

Joy Trott Partridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Partridge, 47 Bartlett st., is a candidate to receive the A.B. degree from Vassar College at its 97th Commencement June 5. Vassar this year is celebrating the centennial of its founding in 1861.

Miss Partridge, a graduate of Abbot Academy, has concentrated in the field of English. She has been a member of the Vassar Glee Club, Chairman of the Social Committee in Lathrop House, and a member of the Student Committee for the Vocational Conference held at Vassar in her junior year. Next year Miss Partridge will teach in the International School in Bangkok, Thailand.

a strong NATO air defense force in the Central Europe Command. Colonel Collins, as a member of this international AIRCENT staff for the past three years, has worked to develop standardized policy for the seven nations which make up the NATO Central Europe air defense system. His efforts have helped to bring the system to its present workable stage.

The exercise - centrally planned and directed - is proof that the various NATO and national commands have to a large degree implemented the recommendations of this group.

Language standardization, technical adaption and joint training are in the process of smoothing away the incompatibilities in equipment and techniques which five years ago isolated air defense zones. And to fighter aircraft squadrons, as to AIRCENT's NIKE missile battalions, it is now becoming routine that air defense aircraft or missiles should be assigned targets which have been detected by radar controllers of other zones.

Difficulties still exist. But it is now possible that vital air defense information, picked up by any one of the many radar stations standing sentinel on the Iron curtain, can be passed swiftly and without major complication to ground control stations in Belgium; or the Netherlands; or France; or to the U.S., British or French air defense zones in Germany.

And fighters and NIKE missiles at their various bases along the path of the invaders can be readied for action and given the vital margin of time they require - the seconds or minutes it takes to get into position to intercept.

MILLER ABOARD USS BOXER

George W. Miller, fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton W. Miller, 18 Fletcher st., serving aboard the amphibious ship USS Boxer, participated, May 22-23, in large scale amphibious assault exercises at Onslow Beach, N.C. Spearheading the Atlantic Coast operation was the 38,000-ton Boxer, flagship of Amphibious Squadron Ten, whose helicopters transported Marine troops ashore for the exercises.

MISS JOY PARTRIDGE

Joy Partridge
Graduates June 5

Joy Trott Partridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Partridge, 47 Bartlet st., is a candidate to receive the A.B. degree from Vassar College at its 97th Commencement June 5. Vassar this year is celebrating the centennial of its founding in 1861.

Miss Partridge, a graduate of Abbot Academy, has concentrated in the field of English. She has been a member of the Vassar Glee Club, Chairman of the Social Committee in Lathrop House, and a member of the Student Committee for the Vocational Conference held at Vassar in her junior year.

Next year Miss Partridge will teach in the International School in Bangkok, Thailand.

a strong NATO air defense force in the Central Europe Command. Colonel Collins, as a member of this international AIRCENT staff for the past three years, has worked to develop standardized policy for the seven nations which make up the NATO Central Europe air defense system. His efforts have helped to bring the system to its present workable stage.

The exercise — centrally planned and directed — is proof that the various NATO and national commands have to a large degree implemented the recommendations of this group.

Language standardization, technical adaption and joint training are in the process of smoothing away the incompatibilities in equipment and techniques which five years ago isolated air defense zones. And to fighter aircraft squadrons, as to AIRCENT's NIKE missile battalions, it is now becoming routine that air defense aircraft or missiles should be assigned targets which have been detected by radar controllers of other zones.

Difficulties still exist. But it is now possible that vital air defense information, picked up by any one of the many radar stations standing sentinel on the iron curtain, can be passed swiftly and without major complication to ground control stations in Belgium; or the Netherlands; or France; or to the U.S., British or French air defense zones in Germany.

And fighters and NIKE missiles at their various bases along the path of the invaders can be readied for action and given the vital margin of time they require — the seconds or minutes it takes to get into position to intercept.
